Sirius Computer Solutions Acquires Strategic Computer Solutions (SCS)

IBM's Largest Solution Provider Strengthens Presence in Northeast and Expands Technical Expertise in Several Key Areas

San Antonio, Texas – Sept. 1, 2007 – Harvey Najim, President and CEO of Sirius Computer Solutions, Inc. (Sirius), announced today that Sirius has acquired Strategic Computer Solutions (SCS). As a result of this acquisition, Sirius adds over 130 sales and technical experts in the Northeast and strengthens its core capabilities in IBM middleware, security practices, and technology solutions specifically for federal government agencies.

Founded in 1980 and headquartered in San Antonio, Texas, Sirius is a privately held company and an IBM Premier Business Partner. Sirius has over 5,000 clients across the U.S., more than 600 employees, and a consistent track record of YTY revenue growth with over $618 million in total revenues in 2006.

Founded in 1977 and headquartered in Syracuse, N.Y., SCS has more than 1,500 clients throughout New York, New England, Connecticut, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Washington, DC. The company is recognized as one of the largest IBM Premier Business Partners in the Northeast, with over $95 million in total revenues in 2006. Due to its extensive expertise in providing customizable solutions based on IBM middleware, SCS was recently recognized with the IBM Five Star VAP Award for its track record in effectively selling and implementing all five IBM software brands, including WebSphere, Lotus, Tivoli, Rational and DB2. SCS' broad range of partnerships with leading software providers, together with more than 350 IT and industry certifications, allows the company to provide clients with best-of-breed technologies that complement its IBM offerings.

"This acquisition fits perfectly into our growth strategy," said Harvey Najim, president and CEO at Sirius. "By combining two loyal, U.S.-based IBM Premier Business Partners, we strengthen our IBM skills in software and servers, geographic presence in the Northeast, and ability to meet the demands of our clients."

Both companies have consistently achieved strong results by leveraging their knowledge of IBM hardware and software products to provide leading-edge technology solutions for their clients. Combined, Sirius and SCS will continue to offer the entire IBM product line to clients. Their complementary product expertise will result in even more comprehensive IBM solutions for companies seeking a true technology partner.

SCS will be immediately incorporated into Sirius, and will do business as Sirius Computer Solutions, Inc. going forward. The SCS employee base, including the entire executive team, will join Sirius.

"We are all excited to be a part of Sirius," said Jim Carrick, president of Strategic Computer Solutions. "They are the strongest IBM partner in the U.S., and like us, they are focused on delivering solutions to their clients, technical expertise, customer satisfaction, and loyalty to IBM. The addition of SCS will strengthen their presence in the Northeast, and further deepen their skills in key technologies."
